Editor's Column

When we saw Ned Graves' material for his monthly conservation column for the Pine Cone, Wilderness of the West, this week we thought it of such immediate and local interest that we should give it as much prominence as possible. The problem is here (see Tote-Gote news story this page) as well as in all the other National Forests throughout the country. We urge your careful reading of the following "guest editorial" and also the reading of Graves' Wilderness column monthly. —W.C.

27—TOTE-GOTES

This is a new word in the vocabulary of mechanized travel. A tote-gote is a gasoline-propelled motor-scooter-type vehicle that is now being mass-produced and is advertised as being adapted to trail and cross-country travel. It might be called a little brother of the jeep, but it can go on paths too narrow for jeeps. It is posing a very serious problem for the national forests and other wilderness areas.

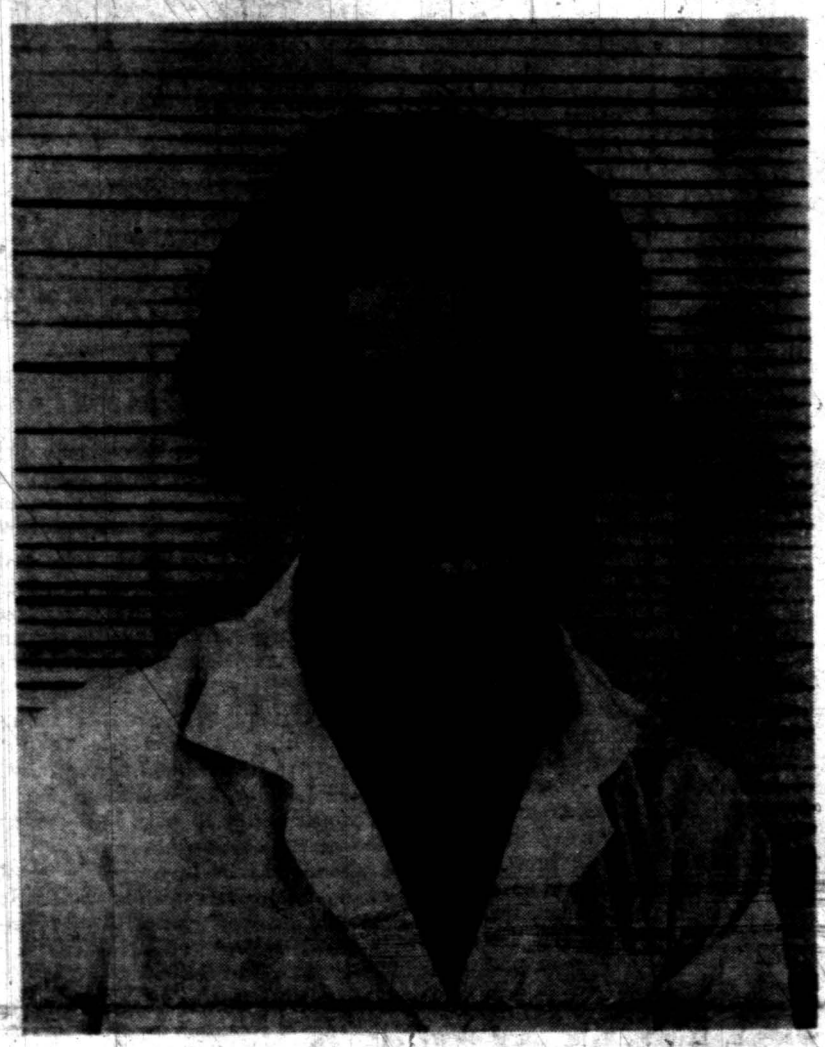

In the Carmel Pine Cone of March 9 it was reported that four Carmel men were arrested by a forest ranger who caught them riding tote-gotes on the Big Pine Trail in Los Padres National Forest. This is in an officially designated wilderness area where mechanized travel is prohibited. However the arguments against using these vehicles in wilderness areas also apply to their use on any forest trails.

These arguments are: (1) They are exceedingly dangerous to hikers and horseback riders. Coming suddenly around a turn in a narrow trail, they can cause a horse to throw his rider, and if the trail is on a steep hillside, they might both plunge to their deaths. It is reported that a Forest Service employee in Montana was killed in this way not long ago; (2) They cut up the trails, and off-trail areas as well, thus preparing them for damaging erosion; (3) They constitute a fire hazard—this has been recognized by the Forest Service which prohibits them in the Los Padres National Forest during fire season; (4) They are a menace to all forms of wildlife; (5) They interfere with the enjoyment of the peace and quiet which is one of the greatest charms of the national forest trails.

Still another argument against them is that they can completely upset the values of the National Forests as reserves for sustaining fish and game. Almost every stream now accessible by road has had to be stocked with catchable size fish, because of over-fishing by the hordes of motorists.

It is my contention that they should be banned from all national forest trails, whether in officially designated wilderness areas or not. They are at present banned in State and National Parks. I recently wrote to the U.S. Forest Service in Washington, stating my

New Recreation Board Member, Gyla Smith, Has Pertinent Experiences

By RAYLYN PENNEY

The Dempsey-Gibbons heavyweight championship fight was held in Shelby, Montana, on July of 1923. A year later Mrs. Hugh Smith (nee Gyla Maramont) was born in that sports-minded little community, and she's been interested in sports and recreation ever since.

Gyla Smith, appointed recently by Mayor Frank Putnam to the Carmel Recreation Commission, becomes the first woman to serve on the year-old board. And she brings to the commission a wealth of experience gained from a highly successful career in recreation spent in several communities and states. On the commission she succeeds Elwood Wilson, whose term expired February 28 this year.

But about that historic 15-rounder back in Shelby, those two items—the bout and Gyla's interest in recreation—are not so non sequitur as they sound. Gyla herself recalls how that single famous fight, financially ruinous to many, perhaps even morally ruinous to some, cast its shade into the years ahead, into her own childhood and influenced her considerably.

"Our little town was never the same afterward," she says. Jinxed from the start by unexpected rain that made the country roads impassable, the match had been further complicated when Dempsey himself caused a postponement, fearing shaky financial backing, and then in the end, hysterical fans tore down the gates to get in and lost the management another fortune in uncollected ticket revenue.

The experience was enough to make many a Shelby resident a bit thoughtful about the good and the harm which can come from

Three Teachers Receive Sabbatical Leave; Among New Teachers Hired Is Son Of Carmel Chief Of Police

Sabbatical leave for three Sunset teachers received approval of the board at last night's meeting. The teachers will receive half pay during their study and travel.

Sally McPhail, sixth grade teacher, will take the first six months of the school year; will study languages at the University of Mexico in September and October; travel in South America, and finish with a tour of Europe, Asia and the Pacific Islands. She has taught seven years in the Carmel system.

Arthur Hull's six months' sabbatical starts with next Spring semester. He will visit junior high schools in Palo Alto and in the San Francisco Bay Area, will take graduate work at Stanford, and follow up a project at the Bancroft Library at the University of California. The following summer he will tour Europe. An eighth grade teacher, Mr. Hull has been with the Carmel District for 26 years.

Mrs. Sarah Sproull, for nine years with the district, who divides her time between counselling and teaching seventh grade, will take a full year's leave to continue her graduate work in counselling, started last summer, at San Francisco State College.

The board ratified the employment of Clyde Klaumann, son of

Carmel Council Opposes Flood Area Proposal

The City Council, at its regular meeting last night, turned thumbs down emphatically on the county's proposed Flood Control Area.

In its report on the proposed flood area (to have a public hearing before county supervisors Monday), the administrations committee pointed out that Carmel is not in a historic flood area, that the water district is already empowered to take whatever flood control measures might be locally necessary, and that the proposed district could add a tax in excess of ten cents per $100 assessed valuation. (Carmel Valley Property Owners Association estimates that the runoff survey alone would cost 10 cents; the complete engineering study, 40 cents.)

Terming the proposal "a classic example of abuses under the present districting", the council unanimously voted to oppose formation of the Flood Control District.

The whole problem of redistricting came up again in a motion by Councilman Francis Whitaker that the council write a letter to Assemblyman Clark Bradley in support of A.B. 2100, a bill proposing a plan for reapportionment of supervisorial districts. Councilman Gunnar Norberg felt the city should strengthen its support by sending the city attorney to the hearings on the bill April 13 in Sacramento. On advice of City

Baugh Fines Four For Tote-Goting In Wilderness Area

Judge Ray Baugh denied the motion of four Carmel men to change their plea of guilty to not guilty of operating a motor vehicle in a national forest closed area when they appeared in Municipal Court March 30, and imposed fines of $200 each or 40 days in the county jail on:

Bill Hook, Dale Vandervort, Pat Harney and Jack Thomas.

Baugh suspended $150 of the fine providing they observe strict compliance with the fish and game code for three years.

The four Carmel men were arrested for operating tote-gotes (motor scooters) on the Big Pine trail while on a pig hunting expedition. While tote-gotes are permitted in the National Forest, except during fire season, they are barred from the Wilderness areas, where the pig-hunting trip took place.

At their first appearance in court, the four Carmel men pled guilty; but when they appeared to hear the terms of their probation they were represented by Attorney John Muller, who made a motion for a change of plea to not guilty.

Evans Urges Protests At Freeway Hearing, Not Roars Later

A public hearing on the proposed Salinas-Monterey freeway will be held on Wednesday afternoon, 1:30 o'clock, in the Monterey County Supervisors Chambers, County Courthouse, Salinas. Engineers from the California Division of Highways will be present to answer questions.

County Planning Commissioner Keith Evans of Carmel urges citizens to attend the hearing. He points out there are eight interchanges planned for the route which essentially follows the existing highway. No one has seen the plans yet, Mr. Evans says, and the only known difference in the

Carmel Unincorporated "No"; Valley Split On Flood Control Area

Carmel Unincorporated, at a directors meeting yesterday afternoon, passed a resolution opposing the establishment of a flood control zone and will have representation at the public hearing in the supervisors chambers Monday.

The Carmel City Council took similar action last night.

A letter poll of Carmel Valley property owners is in progress; meanwhile, strong opposition has developed in the Valley under the leadership of Dr. Grant Fletcher.

Proposed boundaries are the Cachagua, the ridges of the Valley ranges and the Pacific Ocean. Carmel and Carmel Unincorporated are included.

Two surveys are involved, a river runoff study, which Dr. Fletcher says would cost 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation and an engineering study which would require a 35 to 40 cent tax, bringing the total tax cost to between 40 and 50 cents for the surveys alone.

A flood control dam in the Carmel Valley where Klondike creek enters the river would cost around 10 million. A bond election for this would have to be held, but the taxes for surveys, studies and other work can be levied by the board and there is no limitation, as in school district and city taxes.

The flood control area can be set up by the supervisors without calling an election.

Tom Perry, chairman of Carmel Unincorporated urges establishing a river park area of 750

PADRE NINE OPENS LEAGUE PLAY TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Carmel High's varsity baseball team will swing into league action next Tuesday against the favored Gonzales Spartans and will have two league games each week until the end of May. Short on practice games because of schedule difficulties, the Padres will have their work cut out for them when they cross bats with the potent Gonzales aggregation. At a recent meeting of sports, writers and coaches of the CCAL, the Spartans were picked to win the B-league championship while the Padres were relegated to fourth or fifth place. A fine showing in the Monterey Easter Tournament was a vital factor in Gonzales being picked for the top spot in the CCAL B-league.

Tuesday's league-opener will be the first home game for the Padres this season and the outcome of this game will be a pretty good indication of how far the local preps will go in the title chase. Junior Jim Brown will draw the hurling assignment against the Spartans with Forrest Cornwall, Chris Wilkin, Jim Kelley, Bob Holmes, and Steve Johnson ready for relief work. Dave Harber or Frank Bucher will handle the catching with the rest of the infield manned by Bud Cunningham, first-base, Evan Peskin, second-base, Bob Little, third-base, and Lindy Mahrt at shortstop. Outfield starters are slated to be Kent Oleson, Mike Taylor, and Rance Kastor.

Mike Correa, rated the top pitcher in the B-division, will toe the slab for the Spartans and the Padre hitters will have to be plenty sharp to solve the offerings of the crafty left-hander. Correa has one of the best curves in high school ranks and his fine control makes him a tough problem for enemy hitters.

Carmel's junior-varsity takes on the Monterey jayvees next Monday at the Padre diamond and travels to Salinas on Wednesday for a joust with the Palma frosh-soph team.

CARMEL HIGH TRACK TEAM AT KING CITY SATURDAY A.M.

With over 25 high schools furnishing the opposition, the Carmel High thinclads travel to King City this Saturday morning in quest of a few medals which go to the swift and strong in the popular King City Invitational Relays. The relay carnival gets underway at 10:00 o'clock in the morning and has continuous action until nearly 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon. In this meet the Padres will be up against such big schools as Palo Alto, San Jose, Willow Glen, Paso Robles, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, and all the A-division schools of the CCAL.

Coach Hadley Hicks doesn't expect his charges to win the team trophy, but has hopes for a few points from sprinter Charley Todd, half-miler Dan Moore and miler Gerald Taylor. In the field events, Rick Shively and Jack Zenteno could finish with the first five in the high-jump and Pete Capen figures to be in the money in the discus throw. Lightweight sprinter Teddy Leidig turned in a record-breaking performance at Gonzales last Saturday when he clipped a tenth of a second off the school 150-yard dash record.

LITTLE LEAGUE TEAMS SET FOR 1961 SEASON

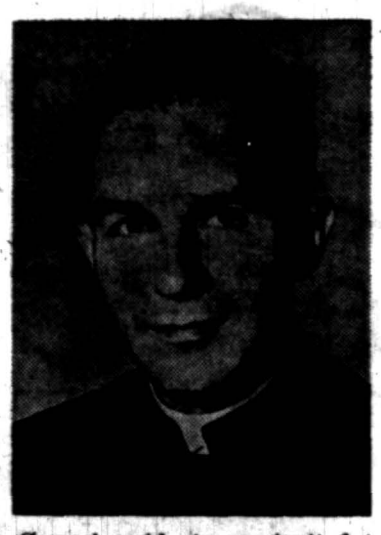

Little League managers and directors got together Tuesday night and each team came up with some good talent to augment the veterans returning to the teams for further Little League action. All the teams are liberally sprinkled with seasoned performers and the new crop of rookies looks to be the best to come up since the league opened. Most of the Little League neophytes have had a year or more in the Farm Team League and know their way around the diamond.

With the Little League opener slated for April 24, officials are busy working out the final details before the first pitch. President Van King has called for another work party on Sunday, April 9 to put the finishing touches on the playing field. A clinic for umpires and managers is slated for April 12 at 7:30 at the Carmel High School. This clinic is designed to give the umpires a uniform method of rules interpretation and field mechanics.

Practice sessions for the six Little League clubs are being set up by the managers and the enthusiasm is high for another successful season. The following players and managers make up the 1961 rosters: Wilder & Jones: Managers—Jack Cate and Skip Kinnion. All players who are not members of the regular Little League teams will be assigned to the Farm Team League and will have plenty of opportunity to play ball during the Little League season.

Carmel Little League is in great need of scorekeepers for the Little League baseball games. Anyone interested please contact George Macy, MAyfair 4-1060.

Carmel residents are invited to attend a Spring series of inquiry seminars in Catholic theology, especially adapted for the inquiring non-Catholic, which will be given by Father Walter Anthony, Paulist missionary, every Tueday afternoon and evening at Carmel Mission Basilica.

The first lecture is entitled God and Christ. The series will be an opportunity for the many Americans, who want to investigate the teachings of the Catholic faith, to learn first hand the doctrines of Christianity which have been taught for almost 2,000 years, according to Father Anthony.

There is no cost or obligation for attendance at the lectures, planned both in the afternoon and evening for the convenience of housewives and working people.

The first one-man show of the paintings of Kaffe Fassett will be displayed at the Coast Gallery, Big Sur, until April 27. The young painter, 22 ears old, recently returned from the East to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fassett of Nepenthe. Included in his show are pictures of the Coast below Big Sur, painted since he came home.

A reception at the gallery opened the exhibit on Easter Sunday. Kaffe, formerly known as Frank, attended elementary school in Big Sur, then graduated from Monterey High School before going East to study four years ago. He was awarded a scholarship at the Boston Museum School, later enrolled in the Art Students League in New York, also traveled in Europe. Kaffe won an art scholarship to Monterey Peninsula College when he was a senior in high school but was unable to accept it as he had already arranged to go to Boston.

Talbert Josselyn

Talbert Josselyn, a nationally known writer of sports stories who was closely associated with many aspects of Carmel life for the past 45 years, died on Sunday in his home on Santa Rita Street after a short illness.

Mr. Josselyn, known to his many Carmel friends as Tal, came here with his family in 1914 from National City in Southern California. Previously they had lived in New England where Mr. Josselyn was born on January 9, 1886, in Worcester, Massachusetts. He attended Stanford University, also the University of California.

The Josselyn family home, built in 1919, was located near the Forest Theater and was a center of hospitality in the then village life of Carmel. Later Mr. Josselyn built his own home in the same area.

Prior to World War I, he wrote fiction for pulp magazines. After the United States entered the war, he endeavored to enlist in military service but was unable to pass Army physical requirements. He took part in the Massachusetts Farm Camp program, then was accepted for officer training, and was about to attend a military camp in Palo Alto when the war ended. He again requested military duty during World War II but was assigned, instead, to the Office of War Information in San Francisco and edited the final draft of the Strategic Bombing of Japan Survey.

During the years between the wars, Talbert Josselyn became nationally known as a writer of sports stories and articles for Collier's Magazine and the Saturday Evening Post. He used the Monterey Peninsula as background for much of this writing. The movie rights of a story he published in the Saturday Evening Post in 1940, titled Second Wind, was purchased by Warner Brothers. He recently completed a western novel soon to be published by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate. The title of the book is Golden City. Much of his writing, considered classic in its field, is preserved in anthologies.

Talbert Josselyn was one of the founders of Carmel's Abalone League, pioneer softball league in the West. He captained one of the teams, developed the rules governing the game and became arbiter of all disputes during the years Abalone League games were an important part of life in Carmel.

He took part in dramatic productions at the Forest Theater, the old Theatre of the Golden Bough and the Arts and Crafts Hall in the days when most of the community was associated in some way with the town's amateur theatrical life.

Although never officially participating in Carmel government, Talbert Josselyn was interested in all developments that affected the character of this community. His keen wit enabled him to clarify confused town issues in a few words which delighted proponents of both sides. He was an authority on the history and development of Carmel and always willing to share this knowledge with persons seeking information.

His perceptive mind absorbed the details of any situation and his accounts of incidents and scenes, vividly expressed, were a joy to those who talked with him.

He is survived by his wife, Florence, a member of the Carmel Planning Commission; a daughter, Barbara; and two brothers, Lewis Josselyn of Carmel and Winsor Josselyn of San Francisco; also a niece, Trudy Alice Josselyn.

Dr. Joseph M. Ewing, minister of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, officiated at private funeral services on Tuesday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove.

City Council Opposes Flood Dist. Proposal

Clerk Larry Rose, the council finally adopted a motion to send a letter, and, if investigation showed any practical possibility of passage of the bill, the city attorney as well.

Getting down to purely local problems, the council heard first reading of an amendment to the ordinance on driveway grades, and considered the codification of its policy of "consistent irregularity" in tree planting.

The matter of adding a new section to the city's tree-planting ordinance, providing precise regulations to the Street Department for tree removal, replanting, and spacing of new trees, came in for some controversy. "I don't see the necessity for this ordinance," complained Councilman John Chitwood; "it's what we've been doing for twelve years anyway. I don't think we ought to legislate on something necessary and obvious, and I can't visualize how it's to be used as law."

Councilman Whitaker was of the opinion that the city's policy should be stated clearly in the ordinance. Councilman Eben Whittlesey more or less agreed: "we can't legislate informality, but the ordinance makes it possible to have reasonably consistent irregularity in the way the work is done."

First reading of the proposed new section was voted down, and the matter referred to the Forestry Commission for further consideration.

The proposed driveway amendment would limit width of drives to 14 feet and grades to 20 per cent and require either a garage or off-street parking area for each new single-family dwelling. Intent of the amendment is to save the city future difficulty in widening of streets, and prevent "excessive disturbance of our natural parkways", according to Whitaker, who expressed satisfaction with the amendment.

Proposal for renegotiation of the city's garbage collection franchise was read by the city attorney. The city's ten-year contract with George S. Roscelli expires in February of 1962, and bids for a new contract will be opened May 3.

The council heard a letter from the Library Board stressing the urgent need for expanded library facilities, especially for juveniles, and moved to set up a meeting with the board at the earliest convenience to discuss the problems and proposals.

A report on the transient use of private dwellings, read by Putman, noted "over 60 deliberate and flagrant violations of the R-1 ordinance", and a tendency to increased illegal uses. The report, accepted by the council, recommended strong enforcement of the ordinance (though it was noted that many of the non-conforming uses antedate the ordinance, adopted in 1929 and codified in 1940), and prosecution of violations both with regard to multiple dwellings on a single residence site and exceeding the legal number of residents in any one building.

After waiting seven months for cooperative action with Monterey on a proposed room or bed tax for hotels, motels and inns, the council moved to proceed with an independent study of the matter; "We've waited long enough on this," observed Mayor Putnam, "now it's time for some action."

Long-sought acquisition of marginal beach lands between Santa Lucia Avenue and the Walker House appeared closer, as Mayor Putnam reported favorable response to proposals to deed beach properties to the city from Miss Elizabeth Norton of Palo Alto as well as from owners of adjacent lots. It was moved that the city appropriate funds to have the Norton property appraised, along with the adjacent Darby, Park and Dillon properties, if requested.

In other business, the council approved appointment of Frederick Rider, managing director of the Golden Bough, to succeed Nelo Drizari on the Arts Commission; granted an urgent request for removal of a pine tree by Mrs. Edna Askew to permit moving of a house on to her property; commended Police Chief Clyde Klaumann and his force for handling of the Easter crowd; and approved appointment of Mark Starr, as Deputy City Attorney. Mr. Starr, an associate of City Attorney John Morse, would simply be empowered to act in behalf of Morse should the occasion arise; "This does not impose any financial obligation on the council," noted Morse, "it simply gives Mr. Starr official dignity."

The council moved to table the whole matter of annexation for the time being, and to continue proposals regarding safety signs on the beaches, provision of a municipal disaster center, reorganization of the Street Department as Public Works Department, sidewalk repair specifications, underground electric services, and other perennial problems.

The council also took note of the public hearing on the state's proposed freeway interchanges, and named Councilman Whitaker as its "uninstructed delegate" to the hearing, April 12 at 1:30 o'clock in the Supervisors' Chambers in Salinas.

Three Teachers Receive Sabbatical Leave, New Teachers Hired

Carmel Chief of Police Clyde Klauman, who is a graduate of Carmel High School and will receive his certificate from Humboldt State this spring. He will probably teach River sixth grade. Also ratified was the contract of Miss Marilyn Peterson, a graduate of the University of Pacific at Stockton. She has taught a year in Redwood City and will be assigned to third grade at Woods.

At the second March meeting, the board ratified a contract for Jeannette McCann to teach girls' physical education at Sunset. She is graduating from Chico State this spring.

Contracts have been offered to Miss Diana Turner, a spring Fresno State graduate, to teach River fourth grade; and to Joe Bowersox, Occidental, who has taught 12 years at Salem, Oregon, to teach science and mathematics at Sunset.

Several more teachers are still needed for replacements but no additional teachers are to be hired for the 1961-62 season.

Four resignations were accepted: Mrs. Susan Speyerer, Woods, second grade, here for two years, is moving to Southern California; Miss Dana Arter, Tularcitos, fourth, two years, is leaving to teach abroad for the U. S. Army. Stephan Whitney, Woods, fifth, two years, will return to college for graduate work; and Mrs. Evelyn Jennings, who has taught Tularcitos' second grade for a year, is resigning for personal reasons, but wishes to continue on the substitute list.

The board received a proposed calendar for 1961-62 school year, "a conventional" calendar as School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell pointed out; a two semester schedule that represents an abandonment of the one year trial of the quarter system.

The board hesitated over the uneven division of the semesters, the first about 10 days shorter than the second, but there was no apparent interest in maintaining the quarter system. They will decide on whether or not to make changes in the proposed "conventional" calendar at their April 19 meeting.

The calendar provides for 180 teaching days. School opens Tuesday, September 5, day after Labor Day and closes Thursday, June 14.

Holidays: Thanksgiving, Thursday and Friday, November 23, 24. Christmas: December 18 through January 1. A two-day high school holiday, end of semester, Thursday and Friday, January 18, 19. Two patriotic holidays, February 12 and February 22. Pre-Easter week, April 16 through April 20. Memorial Day, May 30.

Opening and closing dates agree with those of the Pacific Grove school system; Monterey schools and Monterey Peninsula College open and close one week later.

Several reports on the rising cost of bus transportation, and the prospect of having to purchase an additional bus resulted in a motion by George Yates, seconded by Dr. Grant Fletcher, that Bay Rapid Transit and other commercial transportation firms be invited to bid on taking over the student transportation on the basis of the school bus routes as planned for next year.

The board approved the high school as "collection center" for funds in a drive to raise $20,000, Monterey County's share in a five-county project to install a translator station to provide reception of educational television from station KQED, Channel 9, San Francisco.

Council Receives Plans For Adult Recreation Park

Plans for an "adult recreation" park, conceived and sponsored by the Carmel Rotary Club, was received with pleasure by the City Council last night.

Rotary's project is to develop the city-owned property at Camino del Monte and First Streets as a games area for "adults over 21." According to a plan presented last night by Rotarian Hugh Smith, proposed facilities include two shuffleboard courts, two horseshoe courts and tables for checkers, together with parking for nine cars and extensive landscaping of the entire area with native trees and shrubs.

Rotary is supplying plans and materials, and hopes for the cooperation of the city in actual construction of the recreation facilities. The plan already has approval of the Recreation Commission. Work can start as soon as the Planning Commission, along with the Streets, Forestry, and Lands and Improvements Commitees, have a look a the plans.

According to Rotary's master plan, construction of the games courts, along with grading, fencing and parking facilities, will be done this year. Further landscaping, paths, and construction of a rustic redwood storage room are seen in 1962, while future additions include a drinking fountain, stairs, lawns, and possibly more parking and games facilities.

Landscaping of the park will include planting of 14 Monterey pines, seven Bishop pines, and scores of native oaks, ceanothus, coffeebush and toyon.

The Rotary project was enthusiastically received by the council, the mayor (who, as Rotary president, modestly declined any credit), and several adult games-players in the audience.

SPRAYING PROGRAM PAYING OFF REPORTS ASKEW

At Tuesday night's meeting of the forest commission, Street Superintendent Bill Askew reported that good results of the tree spraying program are beginning to show in handsomer, healthier oaks throughout town. The spraying has abated the mildew, he said.

The commission, receiving a report of the planting program, learned that 49 new pines were set out January through March, and five pines and one oak replaced.

The commission's tree planting plans for San Carlos and for upper Ocean Avenue should be completed by next meeting, the committee reported.

Warshawsky Transmits Visual Delight In His Show At Laky Galleries

By DONALD TEAGUE

It has been a rare thing in recent years to find a painter who paints from the sheer joy of it and who also has the ability to transmit and to share with others the thrill he feels in the subject before him. Too often these days the "painter" is someone suffering from an acute social problem, a serious neurosis, a ruptured spleen or perhaps, as it often seems to the spectator, pure nausea.

The current show of paintings by A. G. Warshawsky at the Laky Galleries on San Carlos Street, Carmel, is recommended to all those who think that this world in most aspects is still a visual delight. To absorb the patterns of light and color and to appreciate the long training and discipline that went into producing the twenty-six pictures is a happy experience—one to lift up the heart and emphasize again the beauty around us.

A great many of Mr. Warshawsky's paintings were done on the spot in France. Some in Brittany, some in the Dordogne and the valley of the Lot. Paris, too, is represented. Nearer home we find a large Monterey Oaks and a Vista of Carmel Valley.

The level of excellence in all these canvases is very high indeed and it would be difficult to pick out any one picture for particular praise. However, special mention should be made of Street in Espalion; lovely cool greys in the overhanging rocks containing the still inhabited caves—Breton Village in Sunshine, with its cool light; and Afternoon Shadows, fresh as a summer breeze.

In another category which has long been a special field of this fine artist are several portraits. Mr. Warshawsky is one of the few painters today who regards a likeness as a prime requisite for that kind of an undertaking, and the portraits in this exhibition are outstanding examples. One feels the essence of a likeness in the rugged Breton peasants and the bellicose impression of the author Martin Flavin; but for likeness, plus painting, plus a tender charm, it would be difficult to beat his portraits of Mrs. Luise Dahlgren and The Wistful Child.

There is also, high in quality, a solid and beautifully composed still life of copper, brass and fruit.

Mr. Warshawsky has been awarded the French decoration of the Legion of Honor. The French Government has purchased paintings by him for the Luxembourg Museum and the Petit Palais in Paris. In America his works are in the permanent collections of the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D.C.; the Cleveland Museum of Art; Toledo Museum; Akron Art Institute; Minneapolis Art Institute; Conajahari Museum of American Painting, New York; Sweat Memorial Art Gallery, Portland, Maine; Brooks Memorial Art Gallery, Memphis, Tennessee; Los Angeles Museum of Art; San Diego Art Institute; also Legion of Honor Museum, San Francisco; M. H. de Young Museum, San Francisco; Maryhill Art Museum, Maryhill, Washington; the Frye Art Museum, Seattle, Washington and De Saisset Art Museum, Santa Clara Academy, Santa Clara; the Art Museum in Stockton, California and the Museum in Tacoma, Washington. He is represented by numerous works in many private collections in Europe and America.

A visit to the exhibition is stimulating and rewarding.

To Sail Through Isles of Greece

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Owings of Big Sur leave shortly for Greece. Awaiting them will be the ketch they have rented for a sailing tour of the Grecian islands. They will be accompanied on the voyage by Mrs. Owings' daughter, Wendy Millard, who is studying in Florence, Italy, this year.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

We have three books by or about Henry Miller, and because he is a neighbor of ours, we will speak first of him. Copyrighted in 1960 by Cambria Books of Alhambra, California, is a very small book entitled To Paint Is to Love Again. It is an account of his life, his early days especially, and his painting. The Henry Miller Reader was edited by Lawrence Durrell. It is "the best of Henry Miller" shown through selections from his longer works with notes by the author and with a chronological summing up at the end of the book. The third book is also small and is entitled Art and Outrage. It is a correspondence between Lawrence Durrell and Alfred Perles about Henry Miller, with comments by Miller himself, and letters from him to both of them.

An Only Child by Frank O'Connor has been in all the review papers so perhaps you need only to be told that we have it and it goes into circulation this week. The same is true for the new biography of Black Jack Pershing written by another O'Connor named Richard who has done other popular biographies.

Bob Cummings of movie and television fame has evolved a positive theory about nutrition and vital living, and a book about the same. The book has been receiving a great deal of attention. It is called Stay Young and Vital. We have it. The author is well over fifty years of age and in his photographs looks all of thirty-five, so his theories must work for him. We already have a few requests on this one, so come in and leave your reservation. It should be worth reading and maybe it will work for you. And speaking of books working for you, we have one which might do something if you can stand trying a few of its suggestions. The book is called How to Live on Nothing and it was written by Jean Shortney. The various chapter titles tell the trend of the author's method. Here are a few of them: How to Keep from Starving, How to Look Like a Million on Pennies, How to Furnish Your Home from Odds and Ends. It sounds depressing but it might help to read the book and see what it could do for you. If nothing else, it might start you counting your blessings.

The author of our next books says, "The healing of the body by faith through prayer is greatly misunderstood by the average sick person and by many members of the Christian church." Gertrude McKelvey is the wife of a minister and her third book is new in the library. It is called Finding God's Healing Power. This book is the result of the author's conversations with many people who had been healed through prayer, and with many distinguished ministers of various Protestant faiths.

Now that the mad rush of Easter week is over, perhaps you can find a parking place within walking distance of the library and come in for a book.

Now In Its 45th Year Carmel Red Cross Has Close Community Ties

Discussions on the need for a more suitable building for the Carmel Red Cross Chapter, started in 1952, finally culminated in obtaining approval from the national headquarters for the chapter to proceed with the sale of the occupied building and securing property for a new site. The property on the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Dolores Streets was purchased and building started in the summer of 1955. The three years consumed in making the real estate transactions, planning and obtaining approval for the building, were not without their frustrations. The City Planning Commission turned down the request of the chapter to build on the corner which is just over the district zoned for residential. Many citizens joined in objecting while others staunchly supported the plan to build the Red Cross on this particular property. At last the city council's approval was given and construction started. The building was designed with particular care to blend in with the residential area and at the same time accommodate the chapter's largest activity, the bloodmobile operation.

Many people were responsible for the final accomplishment of the dream of a new chapter building. Credit particularly is due to two chapter chairmen, Matthew Jenkins and Mrs. Walter Nielsen, and Helen Heavey, who assisted the builders in designing the interior, and Mrs. Miriam Godwin who selected the interior decoration and furnishings.

The property formerly housing the chapter was without indebtedness due to planning and foresight of early chapter leaders, among them Dr. G. H. Taubles. The transactions made it possible for the new building to be completely clear of debt when the doors were opened to the public on October 17, 1955. A bronze plaque in memory of Dr. Taubles is permanently attached to the building.

The chapter building, with its flags flying, is the hub of much community activity. Red Cross volunteers compete with shopkeepers and their employees for parking space every day as the number of residents and visitors increase. Meetings of chapter volunteers, Red Cross representatives from surrounding chapters at workshops and classes of various types, create constant movement through the building each day. Evening First Aid classes and meetings of many community groups keep the flow of traffic going very often at night. Pick-up and return of hospital beds, wheel chairs, walkers and other loan equipment stored in the chapter building add to the regular busy daily activities.

When the building was constructed, special space was arranged for the loan equipment. The service of supplying items for the sick room started years ago when residents, no longer having use for a hospital bed, wheel chair or other equipment donated these items to the Red Cross. The constant use of the loan equipment is evident that it is greatly appreciated by the community, but wear, tear and time take their toll. Replacement of most worn-out pieces was possible through the Fred Mylar Memorial Fund in 1957. This memorial to the late Postmaster of Carmel, volunteer fireman, first aid instructor, and active board and chapter member, as well as beloved citizen contributed to by 12 local organizations and many individuals was especially appropriate. Fred Mylar, who took a special interest in this service, received many calls and personally delivered many hospital beds to homes in Carmel and Carmel Valley. Each piece of the new equipment bears a small metal plaque to his memory.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross is recognized as one of the best small chapters in the nation. As the medium through which the people of the community can reach out to assist those in need, the Red Cross is the expression of the beneficience of the community. The fact of its excellence reflects the confidence of the citizens in the mission of the local organization, the national and international Red Cross; faith in the leaders selected to carry out the programs and activities; and belief in the need for the special help that the Red Cross and only the Red Cross can give.

It is evident throughout the 45 years of its existence the leadership of the chapter has been in the hands of outstanding civic-

VISION

Now in the time of lengthening days
The sower looks across the rows
Of dark moist furrows, but his gaze
Is not on soil or wheat; it goes
Beyond . . . He sees instead
The browning bread.

—ETHEL PEAK

THE BIRDS

Along the curving beach a rushing wave
Will almost reach sand-pipers' twinkling feet,
But up they fly in orderly retreat
And turn as one and land again to brave
The ocean's claws which never quite can grip
These little birds who know the ocean's ways
And eating food in danger all their days
Keep careful watch as down the beach they skip.

A flock of land-based sparrows eating seeds
When frightened, flutter upwards, treeward bound,
And there they settle far above the ground
And shrilly chirping warnings, not one heeds
The explanations others give for fright,
With ruffled feathers, each one cheeps in vain.
The danger over, they all land again,
Descending one by one in solo flight.

—JOYCE W. WEBB

AFTER STORM

The rain has gone—
The clouds have lifted slowly—
They move as though attuned to timeless time—
Behind the trees in leisurely procession
They trail their grey robes eastward as they climb.

Something about their motion moves me strangely—
A slow nobility and sense of peace
As though all things were ordered from the centre
By some great heart whose motions never cease.

—DORA HAGEMEYER

GYPSY HEART

The wild geese as they winged south
Awoke me to a cold and cloud-ragged dawn,
A hunger flamed within my heart, lingering
Long after the geese were gone—
The cry diminished, until it was
Like bright coins, tinkling together—
And I shook with a chill that had Nothing to do with the weather.

minded people who have served, not as a duty, but as a privilege. Volunteer participation has been open to all, and thousands of men and women from all walks of life have contributed their time and talents to build an organization of which they can be proud. Contributions of money have always met the needs of the work of the local chapter and provided for a just share to the support of the national organization. The response for help to disaster victims has always been prompt and generous.

Visitors from other chapters, area and national headquarters often remark upon the atmosphere and spirit which exists because the people of the community have invested in their chapter not only their money, time and talents, but their hearts as well.

Today, secure and confident though it may be, the chapter is not without its challenges. Keeping three ambulances operating with sufficient trained volunteers who are available at all hours is a growing concern, especially during working hours. Blood in quantities to meet the growing demands requires constant searching for new blood donors. Stretching the budget to meet inflated costs of increasing services to an expanding community is a daily exercise.

GEM SHOW AND BARBECUE

A special invitation is being extended to the people of Carmel and the Carmel Valley to attend the 14th Annual Gem and Mineral Show of the Monterey Bay Mineral Society this coming weekend on Saturday, 10:00 o'clock in the morning until 10:00 in the evening, and on Sunday from 10:00 to 6:00 o'clock at the Portuguese Hall in Salinas.

Wayne Booth, past president of the club, will demonstrate the various steps in lapidary work. Among the special displays will be one of lapidary novelties by Chester A. Benish, winner of the Parser Trophy national award, and the Fraser 210 pound boulder of apple-green Wyoming jade. This year's theme is Education, Information, Recreation. There is no admission fee.

To accommodate the people coming from a distance homemade food will be available both days and a special chicken barbecue on Sunday noon.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Those attending Christian Science services Sunday will hear a challenging call to overcome sin and sickness of every kind through wholly spiritual means.

Highlighting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is this Golden Text: "The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give" (Matthew 10).

One of the selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "God is as incapable of producing sin, sickness, and death as He is of experiencing these errors. How then is it possible for Him to create man subject to this triad of errors, —man who is made in the divine likeness?" (p. 356).

This verse will be read from Psalm 145: "The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works."

Jones Receive European Journal

Mrs. Madeline Jones looks forward to letters sent by her daughter, Donna, who is traveling and studying in Europe. They are in journal form and keep Mrs. Jones and her other two daughters, Margot and Sharon, informed of Donna's impressions and activities abroad.

Donna graduated from the University of Wisconsin in June. She sailed for Europe on the first of October and studied music and French drama at L'Institut des Estrangers in Aix-en-Provence until Christmastime. She spent the holiday season in Hamburg visiting a friend and enjoying all events of a traditional German Christmas. From New Year's Day until late in March, Donna skiied in the Austrian Alps with headquarters at Kitzbuhel. She then visited Florence and Rome and was back at Aix in time for Easter.

She is planning to continue her travels to Persia and around the world before returning home. With this in mind, she is exploring possibilities for employment which will enable her to accomplish her purpose.

"Knowing Donna," says her mother, "I am sure she will manage this."

Jordans Guests Of The Crileys

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Jordan of Los Angeles and their children, Mike and Nina, came to Carmel last week to spend the Easter holiday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Criley.

Mrs. Jordan is the former Lydia de Iberrando, an opera singer under contract to La Scala Opera Company and the New York City Opera Company until her marriage to Mr. Jordan. She is a Basque, born in Bilbao and one of 11 children, "all musicians," she remarks. The family was scattered during the Spanish Civil War and some members settled in various parts of South America and Europe. Mrs. Jordan studied singing in Europe during the war period. Later she returned to Bilbao. Residents of her native town were so impressed with her talent they raised funds for her to receive more training towards an operatic career.

"This career ended when my first child was born and I retired to bring up a family," says Mrs. Jordan.

Saturday evening she entertained friends of the Crileys with an impromptu concert of Flamenco singing, another of her accomplishments.

He leaves at dawn Monday morning and will spend four days in New York and ten days in London, visit relatives in Scotland and Edinburgh, then take three weeks to tour all of Scotland before going to Canada. Everywhere he will seek out merchandise. Mrs. Richardson will remain in Carmel, too busy, this time, to leave the Casual Shop.

new route is that it cuts off at the Sycamores.

Monterey and Del Rey Oaks citizens would like the route to go more south by the airport than at present, so that industrial areas in this location may be better developed, according to Mr. Evans. Carmel citizens should be concerned with protecting scenery, he adds.

"It would be well if local people were concerned about this freeway route. If we don't tell the highway engineers, they will do what they want and then the people will raise a roar when it is too late," he declares.

HEARST CASTLE TOURS

The State Division of Beaches and Parks announces that, effective June 16, the number of reserved tours at Hearst Castle, San Simeon, will be increased from two to five. On July 1 this number will be augmented to from five to ten each day. Reservations can be obtained from the Division of Beaches and Parks, Box 2390, Sacramento.

The reserved tour increases will prevent persons arriving at the castle and being turned away, as on March 28 when 450 persons were unable to visit the castle after arriving at San Simeon.

Parallel Parking Part Of Price For Ocean Ave. Project

When the sound and fury of the current street work has passed on Ocean Avenue, there'll be a new problem to contend with: parallel parking.

A parallel parking requirement is part of the agreement between the city and the State, which is paying for the greater portion of the present street work from gas tax funds.

Word of the new parking arrangement has already brought a storm of protest around the head of Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, who wants it known "the Police Department has nothing to do with it!"

Parallel parking will go into effect along the four blocks of the Ocean Avenue shopping area, from Junipero to Monte Verde, as soon as the present project is completed. The new arrangement will mean loss of three or four parking spaces in each block, Klaumann noted.

A resolution approving budgeting of gas tax funds for "Project 45" was passed by the city council last night. The State has allocated a total of $13,320 for 1961-62—$5,328 for maintenance and $7,992 for construction. The construction funds, together with accumulated credit from previous years, will pay the balance of the $61,000 Ocean Avenue project; the city's share will not be in excess of $2,300.

Carmel High Students First To Participate In Employment Program

Carmel High School will be the first high school on the Peninsula to participate in a new program of the Student Employment Service.

On Wednesday afternoon, 12:15-4:00 o'clock, graduating seniors who do not plan to go on to college will be registered by the Student Employment Service at the school, also given tests and personal interviews. Arrangements for work experience for these students, prior to graduation, will also be arranged, if possible, according to Mrs. Talma Wolfe, member of the Student Employment Service committee.

The new program will be extended to other Peninsula high schools, Mrs. Wolfe states. Purpose of the program is to enable students who plan to work to have some preparation before graduation.

The Student Employment Service is a non-profit organization sponsored by a committee of 15 volunteers and operated by the State Department of Employment.

feet each side of the river as a better solution. He points out that flood control engineering would destroy the beauty of the Carmel River. Dr. Fletcher forsees that a dam at Klondike creek would have to become a recreation area if there were to be state aid in financing it, involving waterskiing, motorboating and the type of congestion that has developed with the completion of Nacimiento Dam.

County Planning Commissioner Keith Evans is one of the supporters of the proposed flood control area. Also a long time member of the Carmel Sanitary District board, he says he is concerned for the district treatment works which is safe from broadly spreading floods but not from swift water which he believes will result if property owners continue individually to dyke the river, narrowing the channel.

DO YOU LIKE TO WATCH SPRING COME TO THE MOUNTAINS? Eight years ago two people who did selected a bluff in Hatton Fields and built a charming traditional home to take advantage of the sweeping views of the hills and glimpses of the sea. The 3 bedroom, 2 bath home with its comfortable, country-style kitchen, has proven so pleasant that only now, when its owners plan to travel, is it for sale. The 1/3 acre is enclosed by a cypress hedge, there's a detached double garage. The price is $32,500. It would be a pleasure to show you this property, for it is a REAL HOME.

Big Sur Pilgrimage Instead Of Services At All Saints' Sunday

For the second year, the 9:15 and 11:00 o'clock services will be cancelled at the local Episcopal parish of All Saints' on the Sunday after Easter and the entire parish will make a Pilgrimage to the Parochial Mission of Santa Lucia in Big Sur at 10:30 o'clock on Sunday.

Following the Palm Sunday announcement by the Rector, the Reverend David Hill, of the acquisition of six acres of land in the Big Sur area, the service will be held on the new property. The land adjoins Big Sur Village Store and post office along the Big Sur River. The property is being purchased from the Hans Ewoldsen family, and is part of the original Pfeiffer family land.

The picnic will be held in the State Park and will feature the Puerto Rican Steel Band from San Just,—eight high school boys who are currently touring the United States from their Episcopal Mission School. They have appeared on the Dave Garroway TV program and will be coming from a series of engagements in the San Francisco area.

The entire Parish Pilgrimage and Picnic is being organized by the Vicar of the parish, the Reverend Peter Farmer, assisted by Mr. Robert Forbes and Mrs. Roderick Holmgren.

In Carmel They All But Vote

By Marie Rowland

If ever you visit Carmel Valley's Rippling River Ranch School, be prepared to run into Major Jack Cowan's Chesapeake Golden Retriever.

Penny, as she's known, has the broad, powerful chest that belies her dulcet, golden brown eyes. But don't let the sweet glances fool you; she thinks. And she has great devotion. Right now that devotion probably begins and ends with her master Jack, at whose feet she prefers to sprawl, whenever that busy school director lights.

Penny is ten years old now and inclined to sedentary ways. But Valley folk will tell of her young days when her prowess and courage made legend. Many still talk about her devotion to a small golden cocker named Sarge whom she shadowed and protected constantly.

One day Sarge, who could barely swim, was caught in the rip tide at the foot of Ocean Avenue. The helpless little cocker was being taken out to sea. Penny plunged into the ocean and swam to Sarge, then getting behind her, she put her large head underneath the small body and, holding the golden drenched head clear of the waves, pushed her back to shore and safety.

Speaking of cockers, Scarlett O'Hara is the name of the parti-colored English cocker owned by Hazel "Polly" Pollock who gleefully recalls the time Scarlett almost caused an international incident when she, Scarlett, was refused admittance into Canada by a little upstart of an inspector!

Now Polly had dearly anticipated some lovely deepsea fishing off the bay of Victoria. It took some doing. Polly tells how she held the boat for hours while she corraled the American Consul who gave Scarlett her "carte blanche" so Polly could get her fishing in.

Together with "Muffins", the little black velvet cocker of Mamie Hughbanks, Scarlett now helps keep the deer and raccoons from the gardens of the Carmel Cottage Courts.

Missy, along with two delightful miniature poodles named Su Koshi and Mei Mei respectively, makes up the much loved pet family of Carmel architect Francis Palms and wife Elizabeth.

Poodles, as we all know, are notoriously affectionate. But Missy is not a poodle. She's not only affectionate but she is the busiest little black and tan Welsh terrier you'll find in these parts. She's Carmel Valley's "baby sitter par excellence."

When Mei Mei had her pups, Missy was in ecstacy. She took over all the responsibility of guarding them and keeping them out of the swimming pool. The puppies reared and distributed, Missy began looking around for new responsibility. She settled for babies.

Now whenever Missy disappears, all Elizabeth and Francis need to do is to enquire which family in the neighborhood has a new baby. Once having spotted a cradle or a buggy, Missy takes charge, stands guard, reports home only at meal time and for bed. All the mothers within a radius of blocks of the Palms sing Missy's eulogies.

"It's gotten so that now," explains Elizabeth, "Missy even knows when one of our neighbors is 'enceinte' because that little dog keeps reporting regularly to that house until the blessed event occurs."

New Recreation Board Member, Gyla Smith, Has Many Experiences

organized sports events.

With an eye for organization and a talent for athletics herself, Gyla graduated in recreation and science from Montana State College.

In Shelby she spent three years in charge of the municipal swimming pool, then taught health and physical education in Livingstone, Montana.

From Montana she went to Seattle, where she took a position as co-director of one of the city's five major recreation centers. There she was in charge of activities for women, girls and mixed groups.

Since coming to Carmel in 1950, she has been active in Girl Scouting and in the American Association of University Women, has taught in Carmel's Adult Education program and for the Carmel School Recreation Department, and has been a member of the Carmel School District Recreation Commission.

The Seattle experience was a good opportunity to become acquainted with a highly developed and highly successful plan for providing recreation for a maximum number of people and for allowing maximum use of recreation facilities, Gyla says.

Operated entirely by the city, each of the five Seattle centers is staffed by two full-time professional recreation people, and served by a large park with gymnasium, auditorium, game rooms, offices, football field, tennis courts, softball field, and in three cases by a large swimming pool.

Classes in such things as crafts, sports, dance and self-improvement are held every day for every age group. Also, a weekly social event, tournament or contest is held for each age group.

In addition to facilities for the major centers, the plan is extended to sub-areas where field houses, set in smaller parks but with complete playground facilities and the full staff of two co-directors, a man and a woman, service the immediate neighborhoods.

These playgrounds are assured the community in both old and new neighborhoods by ordinances which made mandatory the setting aside of space for them at prescribed intervals. It has the happy effect of placing a supervised playground with complete recreation facilities within walking distance of every child in the city.

All these facilities, in both major and sub areas, are available for use free of rental to any group or organization for any event of community interest. This means that the auditoriums scattered in the recreation areas over the city are virtually in constant use, as are the other facilities.

About her present home, Gyla says, "Carmel has impressed me with its natural assets and informal approach to recreation. I have particularly enjoyed working with the people here and I'm looking forward to serving on the Recreation Commission."

Gyla's husband, Hugh Smith, is a member of the Carmel Planning Commission. Also members of the Smith household, located near the Carmel High School campus, are daughters Alesa, Ginny and Randa, all students at River School. Grandparents of this trio, and next-door neighbors to the Smiths since moving nearer to town recently from their mountain-top home near Point Lobos, are well-known Carmelites Mr. and Mrs. Everett Smith, the former a past mayor of Carmel.

There is a postscript to this story, which we wouldn't feel right about leaving off. Jack Dempsey won that fight from Tom Gibbons on points after the fifteen grueling rounds, but it was the last fight but one in which he was victorious. Two months later he knocked out Firpo in New York City, then yielded the championship three years later to Gene Tunney.

Editorial . . .

position in this matter. I received a reply from John Sieker, Director of the Division of Recreation and Land Uses, in which he said in part: "People using mechanical vehicles on the national forest trails are enjoying a form of recreation which may be just as important to them as horse and foot travel is to other people. It is our objective to provide all forms of outdoor recreation on the national forests, so long as it is compatible with good national forest management".

I consider this a very weak argument. I am willing to grant that users of motor vehicles are enjoying a form of recreation (so-called) that is important to them, but the argument fails to take into account the fact that they are in a very small minority, probably considerably less than one percent of all of the national forest visitors, and it is certainly not reasonable to allow this small group to spoil the pleasure and endanger the lives of the other 99 plus percent.

A similar argument might be that roller skating on the floor of an art museum would be a form of recreation very important to the skaters, but no one in authority would think of yielding to an argument of that kind.

The basic philosophy of the Forest Service, as stated by the Secretary of Agriculture in 1905, is "the greatest good of the greatest number in the long run". How can such a philosophy be called upon to justify the use of these gasoline-propelled vehicles by a favored few?

The tote-gote invasion of the National Forest has aroused conservationists throughout the country (see editorial page one) and will be the subject of discussion of the Wilderness Society's annual meeting in San Francisco this weekend.

Francis Whitaker and Dave Hagemeyer have requested a meeting with National Forest officials to discuss tighter restrictions on the tote-gote invasions in Los Padres National Forest, and have received word that such a meeting will be arranged.

CITIZENS COMMITTEE OFFER FREEWAY SOLUTION

The Carmel Citizens Committee, Tuesday approved a report of their freeway and interchange committee which recommends asking the State Division of Highways to change the proposed freeway in Hatton Canyon to a four-lane scenic highway, designed for a maximum speed of 40 miles an hour.

The highway should be so routed and designed, the report continues, to reduce cut and fill, tree felling, native shrub removal and other unnecessary destruction of natural beauty.

The Citizens Committee report recommends that a feasible plan for the scenic highway be prepared, also preservation of beauty of Highway One south to Cayucos be another objective of the group.
